

What's New!

for the week of November 23, 2009

May I take this time to wish all of you a very Happy and Blessed Thanksgiving. If it not for you, our Project Linus group could not have made nearly 4,000 blankets in 3 years. You will be among my Thanksgiving blessings.

We are still needing help with the larger size blankets. If you could please work on blankets that are at least width-of-fabric by two yards long, in prints/colors for the teenagers. Thank you, Thank you, Thank you!

There are no sew days scheduled this week—please enjoy your friends and family.. I am headed to California today to be with my children and grandchildren and will return on the 29th.

We will meet at Quilting Sisters on November 30th.

This is a crocheted blanket designed and made by Kitty Hall. Kitty is one of our Southern CA ladies and inspired our group being formed. She is a published designer with these patterns.

Quilting Tip Of The Week - I'm cheating this week. Here are the themes for 2010: January—Hearts; February—Stars; March—Animals; April—Birds; May—Flowers; June—Polka Dots; July—Patriotic; August—Stripes; September - Boy Fabric; October—Girl Fabric; November—Great Outdoors/Camping; December—Food.

Also, we are going to add a tag line for our group and here are your choices—let me know which one you like best:

1. Making a Difference one blanket at a time
2. Making a Difference one hug at a time.
