

What's New!

for the week of January 25, 2010

The sew day at Quilting Sisters scheduled for today has been cancelled.

Friday is a sew day at Three Rivers Art Center in Chiliquin. My apologies to the Running Y for not including them last week.

Please RSVP for Make a Blanket Day, April 24, 2010—space is limited. The theme for Make a Blanket Day is "Go Fly a Kite."

I'm sure you have all seen the recent emails regarding our commitment to the children of Haiti. Our National Office has committed 10,000 blankets and we will be supply 500 of those blankets.

That being said, we need help from all of our Blanketeers not only for blankets but for $$$$ for shipping the blankets. We will be shipping them to Kansas City and from there the Heart to Heart organization will get them to Haiti.

Sew Unique in Mt. Shasta is holding a blanket-making marathon on February 6th and 7th. I will be leaving from Tater Patch on the 6th and going up for the weekend. So far I have two people going with me and have room for one or two more.

Ladies, I know this is a big commitment on my part, but I just keeping thinking if we are ever faced with a disaster, I know we would receive the help we needed. Please do what you can to support this endeavor.

Tip of the week: Are you storing quilt tops that need to be quilted? Want to keep them from becoming more wrinkled? Use cardboard tubes (or the Styrofoam pool toys!) to roll the tops on until you are ready to quilt them.
